REDS FORCED TO FALL BACK

Powerful German Army Reinforced in Ukraine; Nazi Losses Placed High.

MOSCOW, June 26—Against powerful Red army resistance, the German offensive in the Ukraine developed today into a reinforced drive to the east.

Dispatches from the battlefield said that after abandoning Kupyansk, 60 miles southeast of Kharkov, the Russians repulsed a series of fierce assaults in which the Germans tried with tanks and planes to force a wedge into the defense line.

The Russians said that by falling back slowly they had been able to maintain a straight, unbroken front against the fury of the new onslaught.

The Germans intensified their attack. Tass reported, "and despite tremendous losses are pressing eastward."

"Our units slowly retire, offering strong resistance to the enemy," it was said.

The Soviet information bureau announced the fall of Kupyansk, a railway junction of 13,000 population on the forested banks of the Oskol river, saying that "after fierce fighting, our troops withdrew."

The Oskol is an eastern tributary of the Donets, which flows through a war-torn region rich in iron and coal deposits to the Don.

Heavy combat yesterday throughout the area before the German southern front headquarters was indicated by a communiqué which said "our troops in the Kharkov direction continued fighting against advancing German Fascist troops."

Twenty-five tanks and 16 planes were declared destroyed by the coastal artillery of Sevastopol, the Crimean naval base which still flies the Soviet flag after seven months of siege and three weeks of battering that has ripped through its outer fortifications and ruined the bulk of its buildings.

RUSSIA BLAMES JAPS IN SINKING OF RED VESSEL

Tokyo's Attempt To Lay Attack to U. S. Sub Refuted by Moscow Report.

Smouldering friction between Russia and Japan was fanned anew today as Moscow bluntly challenged Tokyo's claim that a United States submarine had torpedoed a Soviet merchant ship.

The Soviet radio quoted survivors as saying that two Japanese submarines surfaced immediately after the 4,761-ton S. S. Angstrom was sunk 32 miles off the Japanese coast on May 1.

Japan had charged the sinking was an American attempt "to create friction between the Soviet Union and Japan... obviously timed for provoking trouble."

"This version does not coincide with the facts," the Russian broadcast said.

Australians Report Attack. Crewmen of a Russian freighter at Sydney, Australia, said they were attacked three times recently by a submarine believed to be Japanese.

Although formally bound by a neutrality and friendship pact, Russia and Japan have several times warned each other against provocative "incidents" which might lead to hostilities on a new front in the global war.

Meanwhile, Japan sought to cover up the humiliating defeat in the battle of Midway by sending a message to Admiral Isoroku Yamamoto, commander in chief of the combined Japanese fleet, lauding "brilliant successes."

June 4 marked the start of the battle of Midway and the Japanese thrust into the Aleutian islands off Alaska.

Identity Not Revealed. A similar message was sent to the supreme commander of Japan's ground forces in the eastern Pacific, whose name was not disclosed.

The silence on the latter's identity was significant because the message evidently applied to the Japanese invasion of the Aleutians and it is Japan's invariable rule to keep secret the names of commanders in specific zones until their operations are successful.

Chinese dispatches said Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's armies had moved into position south of Nanchang, in southeast Kiangsi province, and were preparing to assault the city.

Nanchang is the farthest point the Japanese have reached in a drive toward neighboring Fukien province.

Plan Rally To Boost Scrap Rubber Campaign

Colorful Program Arranged at Courthouse at 2 P. M. Saturday; Harding Band To Play.

Conceived as a stimulant to Marion county's scrap rubber drive, local campaign officials announced today plans to stage a colorful rubber drive program Saturday at 2 p. m. on the courthouse esplanade.

Decision to hold the program was reached at noon today when H. A. Krugbaum and J. P. Sherry, co-chairmen of the Marion county war petroleum council, George H. Alber, Marion county chairman of the Ohio Salvage committee, and Robert T. Mason, manager of radio station WMRN, met with Mayor Russell C. Snare to discuss an appeal by Governor Bricker.

In a wire to Mayor Snare, Governor Bricker asked that a community program be signed to stir up activity in the local scrap rubber drive be held Saturday.

Band To Play. Homer E. Huffman, director of instrumental music in the public schools, assured members of the committee that the Harding High school band would play during the program.

Mr. Huffman has requested band members to meet at Central Junior High school Saturday at 1:30 p. m. in full dress for appearance at 2 p. m. at the court house.

Mayor Snare, Mr. Alber and other scrap rubber drive officials, will give brief speeches, appealing for additional scrap rubber.

The nationwide drive was started by order of President Roosevelt when shortage of the vital material threatened to alter the war production schedule.

George Long, an employee of the Standard Oil Co. and official tabulator for the local drive, said today that 15,411 pounds of rubber were collected yesterday. Only 257 pounds were donated, the remaining amount being purchased at a one-cent-a-pound rate.

To date a total of 161,035 pounds, or 95 1/2 tons, has been collected. Marion county's quota is 125 tons.

Distribution of 3,700 letters to farmers in the county began today by rural mail carriers working from the Marion post office.

Drive officials have requested farmers to fill in blanks in each letter and place them in their mail boxes for collection not later than Monday.

When the ships have been returned to drive officials a thorough coverage of all Marion county roads for the purpose of collecting rubber will be started.

George H. Alber today appealed to Marion city residents who have scrap rubber on hand to call the Boy Scout office, phone 29834, so that a Boy Scout may call at their home.

AXIS FORCES ADVANCE 100 MILES IN EGYPT

British Eighth Army Expected To Make Decisive Stand Near Matruh.

CAIRO, June 26—The main armored force of Nazi Marshal Erwin Rommel had driven at least 100 miles into Egypt to confront the British Eighth army today with a challenge to decisive battle.

Latest word from the desert was that the Germans and Italians, advancing despite bitter British resistance, had not yet crossed into the principal British force, which is expected to make its stand somewhere before Matruh, 130 miles within Egypt.

Supported by mobile infantry, the Axis heavy armor is lumbering along a wide natural avenue about midway between the sea and a desert plateau which rises 25 to 30 miles inland.

Smaller enemy forces were operating along the coast. Further south, some were reported to have reached the western rim of the Qattara depression about 80 miles inside Egypt but were dealt with by British armored patrols.

There was scant reason to believe they would attempt to cross the depression, which is a vast stretch of salt sand below sea level.

Swift Axis Advance. While the swiftness of the Axis advance made it virtually certain the main bodies of the two forces soon would be locked in battle, United Nations sources said there was every reason to believe the enemy would be held.

Rommel, throwing everything he possessed into the advance, is operating on a shoestring fully as much as the British are. The fact he has manipulated his armor more skillfully, but as he progresses his problems become more difficult in many respects while those of the British become simpler.

The British apparently were pinning their hopes of victory largely on the geographical advantages of their defense line and on the possibility that Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's lines of communication, now extending far across the desert, may not be equal to the occasion.

Dispatches from the front indicate that the Eighth army still was a formidable fighting force despite the battering it received in Libya and that it would be able to give a good account of itself.

Against this force Rommel was reported throwing into action every ounce of striking power at his disposal. This included the German 21st and 15th armored divisions, the Italian ariete ("charging ram") mechanized division and a great supporting mass of motorized infantry.

The Axis chief was reported to be filling up the gaps which were knocked in his equipment during the fighting in Libya by pressing into service recently captured British and American-built tanks and trucks.

In his haste to strike swiftly and give the British no chance to reorganize their forces, Rommel did not even take time to re-equip this equipment, merely daubing swastikas on the sides of captured tanks, before sending them into action.

The Matruh line, along which the British have taken their stand, is approximately 60 miles east of Sidi Barrani beyond

EUROPEAN WAR IN VITAL PHASE

Experts Take Grave View of Allied Position; Present United Nations' Outlook.

WASHINGTON, June 26—Military experts, taking a grave view of the Allied situation in North Africa, said today the war in Europe was entering a potentially decisive phase with Germany at the point of making her long-awaited all-out drive against Russia.

Then ext few days, one authority said, should show whether the great battle on the Russian front has in fact already begun in the operations at Kharkov and Sevastopol or whether those were preliminary actions-in-force for the main campaign which would then certainly be undertaken by the Germans with little delay.

Germany, it was generally believed here, would try for a series of successes to smother that by next fall or winter she would be able to follow up with either an attempt at invading Britain or a negotiated peace with her foe in Europe.

The end result of either course, if successful, would be to deprive the United States and the remaining Allied Nations of both invaluable allies and effective bases from which to strike back at the Axis in Europe in 1943.

Outlining this bleak prospect, the world would have the world see it, were these considerations from the United Nations' point of view:

1. The heroic record of resistance made by the Russians and the predictions of officials that they never would be defeated.

2. Prime Minister Churchill's (Turn to EUROPEAN, Page 2)

BREMEN AND SUB BASES HIT IN NEW RAIDS

More Than 1,000 Planes, Including American Made Craft, in Attack.

LONDON, June 26—Two huge forces of RAF bombers roared over Europe last night in what was probably the greatest assault in the history of aerial warfare.

Great fires were reported in the big German port city of Bremen, principal target of the sky armadas.

Indications were that the number of planes participating exceeded the flights of 1,130 and 1,036 bombers which had Cologne and Essen in ruins on May 30 and June 1.

An air ministry communiqué told of one bomber force of "more than 1,000" whose main target was Bremen and reported intensive attacks on air fields in the low countries by "a second force of bombers and fighters."

This force was believed to have been numbered in the hundred. American-made Lockheed Hudson bombers belonging to the RAF participated in the Bremen attack, while Douglas Havoc fighter-bombers were used in other forays.

Fifty-two planes were missing, the highest one-night loss ever experienced by the RAF, but informed sources said this was less than 5 per cent of those involved.

Return Today. Again today the RAF was reported active over the English channel area.

In addition to the Bremen raid, hundreds of fighter planes and fighter-bombers were believed to have participated in intensive harassing attacks on German air fields.

Each of the three massive air blows has been aimed at a vital arsenal supplying war tools for Adolf Hitler's land, sea and air forces.

By centering on Bremen, the RAF evidently was adhering to a policy of making "priority targets" of U-boats, especially U-boats under construction. In the period since the Essen-Cologne raids, smaller RAF squadrons—presumably of several hundred planes—four times have smashed at Emden, a U-boat base 70 miles northwest of Bremen.

It was the second time this month that Bremen was singled out by the British for the RAF's fire bath.

Many War Facilities. Besides being Germany's second largest port, with a population of almost 500,000, Bremen offered targets in abundance along with shipbuilding yards and one of Germany's biggest submarine construction works, its docks, railways, steel works, oil refineries and the Focke-Wulf factory and airfield where the Nazis get fighters and great, long-range bombers.

Bremen was said to have been defended heroically by night fighters and anti-aircraft fire against this, the 55th and heaviest, air bombardment of the city as the RAF went back with a vengeance to its high-scale offensive after bad weather had kept its huge bombers at home two nights.

Soil and Water Conservation Studied at Farm Meeting Here

Agricultural Councils of Five Counties Hold Session at Hotel Harding.

Marion's five representatives in agriculture and conservation, including the district council of Marion, Adams, Morgan, Belmont and Delaware counties, met last night in the interest of soil and water conservation at the Hotel Harding. The meeting was called by George J. Burnside, director of the Ohio Chamber of Agriculture, and speakers were Burnside, Agriculture Commissioner A. H. Smith, Marion farm agent, and others. The program was outlined by Mr. Burnside, who pointed out that the loss of topsoil was a real danger to the state. The Ohio water table is falling at the rate of one foot a year, he stated. Loss of either or both of these resources would leave Ohio cities nothing but ghost towns and communities desolate, as industry and agricultural enterprises left to seek other locations. Corrective measures, whether natural or artificial, must be employed as soon as possible, to ward off this menace, he stated.

Mr. Burnside cited as equally important the conservation of topsoil through proper land use management, and explained how millions of tons of rich Ohio topsoil are lost annually through erosion, which, he said, can be prevented and stopped by proper methods. Already, he pointed out, 1,600,000 acres of Ohio farm land once used for cultivated crops, have been abandoned because of soil losses, and more than three million acres have been destroyed for all practical purposes, he stated.

Conservation of the program was stressed by the speaker who pointed to its practical use in the Federal Government wherein the American farmer has been given the greatest protection goal in his history with particular need for meat and dairy products, vegetables and other necessary products. He warned against the threat of allowing farm values to become inflated, recalling the disastrous effects of this procedure in World War I when the bottom dropped out of land values after the war.

Program As Outlined

The program as outlined by Mr. Burnside, includes land use planning, conservation, vocational agriculture, farm insurance and post-war agricultural problems. The immediate need for conservation of soil and water was emphasized by the speaker and he pointed out that the loss of topsoil was a real danger to the state. The Ohio water table is falling at the rate of one foot a year, he stated. Loss of either or both of these resources would leave Ohio cities nothing but ghost towns and communities desolate, as industry and agricultural enterprises left to seek other locations. KIWANIS SPEAKER

DON C. WARD

EDUCATOR ADDRESSES LUNCHEON CLUB

"Uncle Sam's Birthday" Subject of Address.

"Uncle Sam's Birthday" was the topic discussed by Don C. Ward, educator, newspaper man and public speaker, at the luncheon of the Marion Kiwanis club yesterday noon at Hotel Harding.

He paid high tribute to the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence and in discussing the results of the declaration said, "It did not bring victory at once to the new nation, but it assured it the launching of a new nation and the beginning of the national era. It also brought light and liberty in many other lands, inspiring patriots in various parts of the world."

In concluding his address Mr. Ward presented the challenge, "We show again that proud, heroic, unconquerable spirit of 1776."

During the luncheon William H. Apling, manager of the Big Bear store, R. H. Meade, manager of the Goodyear store, W. H. Hoffman of the Huber Manufacturing Co., Max Birnbaum of the Marion Window Co., and J. D. Jones, Marion contractor, were inducted as new members.

Guests included A. H. Smith, E. E. Cox, Homer Stury and Frederick Hunter.

Furnishing trained leadership such as offered by a local chamber of commerce which can be made the civic center of the community. The citizen must awaken to the peril at hand and should prepare himself to study his own community government where the cures for all government ills must start, he told his audience, and declared that the "liberty of the country" depends upon the participation in civic and public affairs by every citizen.

Mr. O'Brien made a plea for unity and alertness in the national emergency. "Every time you or I take a hand or spend a word to turn class against class, every time we fan hatred, slow down production, waste a penny's worth of material or a moment of time, we are firing a shot into the heart of America," he declared.

A brief talk in which he asked the cooperation of those living on farms for contributions of rubber during the present scrap rubber drive, was given by A. N. Stuart of the Firestone Rubber Co., preceding the talk.

Mr. Smith introduced the following county agents: B. E. Bradford of Hardin county; L. G. Brubaker of Union county; Paul Cunningham of Delaware county and Elwood Davis of Morrow county.

PREDICT NATIONAL TRANSPORT CRISIS

Car Pools, Staggered Hours
To Help Solve Problem.

(Gallup poll report on workers transportation appears on page 11.)

(By The Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, June 26—A nationwide worker-transportation crisis, with potentially serious effects on the war production effort, was predicted by the public roads administration today as a result of the forced retirement of passenger automobiles.

After a study of the problem in a sample locality, the bureau said it now was "absolutely necessary" that universal group riding be instituted as a means of extending the usefulness of available cars and tires.

The agency suggested also that working hours be staggered in community-wide bases to increase the efficiency of mass transportation.

Anticipating transportation difficulties, the office of price administration, the office of petroleum coordination and the office of defense transportation already have urged the organization of car pools. Mayors of more than 500 cities have set up war transportation committees to organize group-riding and staggered-hour programs.

OPA has interposed an element of compulsion in the case by announcing that under the new gasoline rationing program, a car owner cannot get a supplementary ration card unless he can show he is a member of a car pool with at least three other persons or that it is impossible for him to join such a pool.

The effective date of coupon gas rationing was postponed from July 15 to July 22, to allow more time for the organization of such pools, with persons grouping together to rotate the use of their automobiles in traveling to and from work.

A committee of the petroleum industry was counsel has reported that the number of passenger cars in use, now about 27,000,000, would drop to 23,700,000 by the end of this year, 9,000,000 in 1943, to 12,000,000 by 1944. It added there would be no passenger cars left on the road in 1945 should the war last that long without new sources of rubber.

The urgency of the situation gave rise to the scrap rubber collection drive now in full swing.

Mr. Churchill on Defensive

THE odd circumstances of American confidence in his leadership when it is being challenged at home will not be overlooked by Prime Minister Churchill and other responsible politicians in both countries.

It is not outside the realm of possibility that in a showdown—a vote of confidence in the house of commons—American public opinion would have to be given weight commensurate with the importance of American military aid.

Certainly it is probable that in the appraisal of war leadership now being made in Britain very careful attention will be given to the effect of any political change on United States war policy.

If the appraisal were to be as objective as it should be, one thing would have to be acknowledged that still is widely disregarded; namely, the hopeless task that confronts the United Nations as long as they continue to fight defensively. Probably no leadership, however brilliant, could have overcome the tremendous advantage the Axis has enjoyed in the war so far—the advantage of choosing the time, place and circumstances of battle. The same men who have been discredited by the circumstances of defensive war against a strong and skillful enemy might be transformed, if they could lead an offensive, into the genius class headed at present by the German General Rommel.

Mr. Churchill's political dilemma resolves itself into the dilemma of the United Nations—how to rob Germany and Japan of the initiative. It would be no easier for another prime minister to solve than it has been for Mr. Churchill. While it may become desirable for popular effect to install a new government in Britain, Americans properly may ask what it could do that Mr. Churchill's government hasn't done.

There is, in short, nothing wrong with the Churchill cabinet that probably couldn't be cured in short order by the privilege of taking the offensive and leaving second-guessing to the other side.

News Behind the News

Smith Leads Eccles Into Admission Our Gold Hoard Has Nothing To Do with Money Value.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, June 25—The Treasury department and currency committee have been in a state of suspense for some time regarding the results of the Federal Reserve Board's report.

It was announced officially and privately that our gold reserves are not anything whatever to do with the value of our currency, but are completely off the gold standard.

If there was stupefaction in Congress, there must have been confusion in the Treasury department at such a plain official suggestion that the gold (and silver?) buying policy was a flop, that the value of the dollar is really only what the government says it is.

Rep. Frederick C. Smith, a Republican from Marion, O., led Mr. Eccles up to the subject, suggesting that the country is getting near fiat money; that the war might cost $300,000,000,000, that even if the cost only gets up to $200,000,000,000 (appropriations already have reached $208,000,000,000) the question of the gold reserve becomes important.

"No," said Mr. Eccles. "There was a feeling that by increasing the price of gold, you recall, that the increase would be immediately reflected in increasing the price of goods. Well, of course, that we all know, didn't work. So I say the question of the gold reserve doesn't have any relationship to the stability of value of the currency."

Smith's Questions
Mr. Smith: "Father bank currency or circulating currency?"
Mr. Eccles: "No, I don't think so."

Mr. Smith: "What then is the fundamental principle of the federal reserve banking act?"
Mr. Eccles: "Well, it isn't that."

Mr. Smith was obviously disabergasted. He pleaded:
"I don't believe you want to go on record as saying that, I don't believe you want to do that."

Mr. Eccles: "That is right, yes I do." Then later on: "I do deny that the amount of the gold reserve, or the gold requirements have anything to do with the price level, which means they have nothing to do with the value of currency."

Mr. Smith: "Aren't you, in effect, saying there is no relation whatever of gold in this country to our currency?"
Mr. Eccles: "That is right."

Mr. Smith: "There is no relation whatever?"
Mr. Eccles: "That is right."

Mr. Smith: "You then take the altitude we are completely off the gold standard?"

Mr. Eccles: "Yes, completely."

Mr. Smith: "I am rather astonished. It makes no difference then whether we have an ounce of gold or whether we have 700,000,000 ounces?"

Mr. Eccles: "It has made no difference to Russia for 20 years, no difference to Germany for a long while. Most of the countries of Europe had to give up the idea of the gold reserve. Their currencies have gone into managed currencies. . . . the Russians have mined gold as a commodity to sell to the democracies and get goods that they have wanted to get and they haven't looked upon gold as a necessary item to support their currency."

It's Good for Teeth
In other words, gold is good for teeth and for selling to Mr. Morgenthau at the arbitrarily inflated figure of $35 an ounce, not much otherwise.

Mr. Morgenthau is sitting on the world's largest amassed pile of it, and there is nothing he can do with it, except to increase the problem by buying some more from Britain or Russia, which means giving away public money for gold.

Thus has the cut from old ties now been officially conceded for the first time by the head of the banking system. Mr. Eccles has merely recognized the obvious effects of administration policy, which any reader of this column will recall having read from time to time for years back.

The important point is that it is now official. No one can be accused of being against the administration for saying the policy was a failure.

The value of currency, it appears, is not in the hands of Mr. Eccles or Mr. Morgenthau, but in the hands of Leon Henderson. When you read the price of food in your grocery, you will find out the real value of the dollar these days.

What this portends for post-war policies, domestic and international, cannot be foretold yet, but there are all rooted in the basic gold theory.

Certainly this seems to mark an official end of the New Deal era of grand mechanical economic formulas to control prices indirectly by taxation, by the Warren theory, by gold or silver.

No Dull Moments for Betty WAAC

By GEORGE S. MILLS
Wide World Features

FORT DES MOINES, Iowa, June 25—"A girl will do everything in the army but carry a rifle."

That's the way Captain Gordon C. Jones, director of training, puts it in describing the scope of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps. The first 410 candidates for the WAAC officers' training school are expected to report here July 20.

The captain might also have added that Miss Betty WAAC will develop plenty of muscle in the initial eight weeks' training course. The tentative schedule calls for an hour and a half's brisk exercise on the ordinary day, including close order drill, calisthenics and athletics.

She also will have to learn half a dozen or more bugle calls which say "You've got to get up," "Food's ready," "To the colors," "Lights out," "Taps" and the like. Not to mention such things as getting up, dressed, bed and quarters arranged, all in half an hour.

School officers are not worried over the girls having too much excess energy to expend over the week-ends. One officer said the schedule is so tough that when Saturday rolls around "most of them either will be too tired to leave camp or will feel the need for further study."

"This is a competitive proposition," he said, pointing out that not all candidates will be commissioned as officers.

As a general thing, Betty will be on her own Saturday afternoon and all day Sunday, although she probably won't be allowed to leave the city of Des Moines. She will be permitted to wear civil clothes off the post. When she leaves, she will have to sign out, and when she returns she will have to sign in.

Here is a tentative day in Betty's first week of life in the army: 6 a. m.—Bevelling wake her and more than 30 other girls from their regulation army cots in one of the large rooms of the renovated red brick barracks. In 30 minutes hair must be combed, face washed, uniform donned, bed made, equipment put away. She will have a wall locker for her clothes.

6:30—Mess call sounds and she hurries to the mess hall where she picks up her breakfast cafeteria style.

7:30—Close order drill. 25 minutes of it. Colonel Don C. Faith, the school's commanding officer, says first drill work will be by squads. A masculine noncommissioned officer will act as instructor, but feminine group leaders will be named as soon as possible.

Miss WAAC's first drill instructor will concern the position of the soldier. "We'll learn right face, left face, about face and the like. Since she is not doing to take a rest on any exercises, she will not be exposed to the manual of arms.

7:55—Drill ends
8:05—She settles back to listen to a 45-minute lecture on military discipline, customs and courtesies.

(Ge. doesn't it seem a long time since 6:30? Another 45 minutes of military discipline and customs. This session is labeled "practical work" as contrasted with the preceding lecture period.

It's time out for the next 20 minutes and, presumably refreshed Betty then goes into a 45-minute class on "The proper wearing and care of the uniform."

11—A 45-minute physical training period starts, featuring calisthenics or mass games conducted by a feminine director of athletics. The games are designed

Glass in Wartime

Industry Gets New Business It Hopes To Keep.

By JAMES FLARLOW
AND WILLIAM PINKERTON

NEW YORK, June 25—(Wide World)—The war has been kind to three of the four types of glassmakers. They are up to their ears in work and the raw materials they need are plentiful.

They have a main hope: that the business the war has brought them will continue after peace. Blessed by the war are the makers of fiber, tableware and container glass.

Fiber glass makers easily turned from peace to war production. Tableware makers now have no foreign competition. The makers of glass containers are watching their product take the place of many rival cans.

But a fourth type, flatglass makers, saw a big chunk of their market disappear because they made glass for buildings and new automobiles and when war came the former was curtailed and the latter stopped.

A spokesman for one of the largest flatglass makers, explaining how his firm is seeking new outlets, cheerfully said:

"Now we are promoting mirrors and window-conditioning." "If everybody in the United States," he went on, put in window conditioning it would mean the saving of coal and fuel oil equal to a trainload 2,500 miles long.

Unlike other industries cramped or shut down for lack of raw materials, glass makers needed more directly for war purposes, glass has not suffered for lack of its ingredients: sand, lime, soda ash, and the oxides which give color.

The fiberglass makers swung over from the peacetime manufacture of glass thread and insulation for homes, refrigerators and stoves to war production of insulation for ships, aircraft and windings for wires and cables.

Tin had long been the rival of glass for first place on the shelves of the nation's groceries. When the Japanese shut off the East Indian tin supply, glass began to move up to the head of the class.

There are glass containers now for more than 400 brands of coffee and hundreds of other items from fruits to vegetables.

Glass containers, the makers hope, will retain their place on the nation's store shelves after the war. They are going to try to give tin a battle for first place.

The tableware manufacturers have their field to themselves with foreign competition about out of the picture.

STOCKHOLM—The industrial production index maintained by the Swedish Association of Manufacturers rose one point in April to 105. This equals the peak figure reached during 1941.

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Sunday, June 26, 1932. Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kinsler celebrated their golden wedding anniversary at their home on North Grand avenue.

James E. Lawrence and daughter Mary Catherine of Hubbard were guests at the D. F. Lawrence home on Avondale avenue.

Miss Dorothy Snyder of New York City was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Snyder, of Gurley avenue.

Grover C. Snyder of Marion, who with Mayor H. H. Hartman of Gallon was to represent the Eighth Ohio congressional district in the Democratic national convention, left for Chicago, the convention city. W. W. Durbin of Kenton was one of Ohio's delegates-at-large. Alternates from this district were Charles Sautter of Morrow county and Florence Hall of Upper Sandusky.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Monday, June 26, 1922. The German republic was reported seriously threatened by the assassination of Foreign Secretary Walter Rathenau. A state of siege was then in Berlin and former Field Marshal Von Hindenburg was summoned to help restore order.

Mrs. W. R. Vaddell of New York City was in Marion visiting her sister, Mrs. C. L. Delancy. Dr. and Mrs. T. H. McAfee and daughter Rachel and Miss Edith Brown returned from a visit with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bishop of Ashland.

The C. D. & M. Electric company installed a transformer at the fairgrounds for operation of 12 loud speakers to be used for the Marion centennial program. An audience of 100,000 was expected. The power company also strung a 1,200-foot wire line to supply lights for a barbecue kitchen to be operated north of the grandstand.

Quarter of a Billion Dollars A Be Sneezed at; Lottery Would Produce That and More.

By DAMON RUNYON

HAROLD KNUTSON, congressman from Nevada, who has introduced what is the best of all the federal lottery bills, writes that he thinks the revenue will become so acute that it is necessary to resort to such a plan.

He says my estimate of $100,000,000 probable revenue to the government for lottery is conservative, from which I figure Mr. Knutson has not heard my revised $250,000,000. Incidentally, this seems to own, as he remarks:

"Some years ago I read that it was estimated that $300,000,000 was invested annually in Irish Sweepstakes and an equal amount in counterfeits. Those figures may be exaggerated, and probably are, but I do think we could take in a quarter of a billion annually and that is not to be sneezed at. It is a time when we are giving consideration to imposing excise or production taxes on such items as sugar, coffee and other commodities that are used on the American table."

Mr. Knutson says the treasury department is hostile to the idea of the federal lottery. It is understandable. There are certain people who are naturally somewhat hostile to financial minds such as prevail in the department. I think only dire emergency could overcome their prejudice, and it may be the emergency is at hand.

AS a matter of fact, the government is therefore the treasury department, becoming a partner in a form of lottery, the measure that taxes pari-mutuels but not the government proposes sharing enterprise that is legal in some states but in others is not.

This taxation will be against those public who gamble on horse racing and to the taxes already imposed in states gambling is legalized. It will, in my mind, tend to throttle the whole business of the sucker who plays against the roulette gets a better break than will be afforded pari-mutuels player under the increased action. However, I am not going to try the arguments of the horse players. As told you before in this column, all horse men must die broke and the new tax will expedite the latter state. But I would inquire of those persons who object to a federal lottery on moral grounds, the moral difference between the government dipping the horse racing gambling pot and running own gambling racket.

MAYBE it is the same difference between a church congregation running a bing and objecting to the boys shooting craps the corner. Or prominent citizens engaging sweepstakes drawing for charity and squabbling about a baseball pool or pinball machine all gambling and if you ask me, there varying degrees of sinfulness in gambling one form is sinful, then all forms are sinful. Mr. Knutson's bill, HR 8587, referred ways and means committee of which member, provides for prize drawings as of raising additional revenue for defense expenditures and of financing increased grants for old age assistance after the allows for monthly drawings and a prize of $100,000 and numerous lesser prizes.

In general, it meets with my approval that I hold the revenue should go to the relief of the families of service men government provision to this end and wide nation now in the making will not be slow to cover the needs of these families, with the increased pay of the men.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Cox

CHAPTER EIGHT
Confession

JOYCE is a quiet and pleasant girl. She sat down on the sofa, far enough away so that she could tell one foot under her and watch her color.

"What," she said, "what is all this?"

"I want to see Perry Clarke."

"I did." The girl sucked her breath on the finger and Joyce could see her hand trembling.

"You just came from there?"

Joyce swallowed hard, her smoky-blue eyes troubled but steady.

"And what was that about being arrested?"

"Maybe I will be. I stole something."

"You stole something?"

"From his bedroom."

Joyce let her breath come out and made her voice patient and very calm. "Perhaps," she said, "you'd better start at the beginning."

"That would be last night, I suppose," Della said, and for the first time the excitement died in her voice. "It wasn't a quarrel, really, but I knew something was wrong."

She paused and studied the end of her cigarette.

"I'd known, of course, that Ward had had some trouble in South America. He never told me what it was and I never asked him about it—or cared. He just mentioned once that he'd been in a jam. And other times, when someone would ask him about his experiences down there I could see a change come over him. It was nothing anyone else would notice, you couldn't really see anything different in him, but it says, when we were going home, he would be quiet and thoughtful."

"Oh, I do," Della said. "I do."

She continued to regard the end of her cigarette, her voice a long way off. "But he said we couldn't. There were things to straighten out first. And I was hurt and—silly, I guess. Something happened to us. We didn't quarrel then though. Not until today."

"Oh," Joyce said. "In the library?"

"Yes. While you were talking to Uncle Dean, Perry Clarke and Ward went off by themselves. I saw them go through into the hall and when they didn't come back I went out I didn't see them so I went into the other room. That was empty too. I walked over to the far end and was looking out the window when the library door opened and they came in. It shielded me, I suppose, and they didn't see me, although I heard what they said."

"She stopped to take a breath, went on slowly."

"I couldn't hear all that Ward said," Della went on, "because his voice was so low and bitter, but it was something like, 'Not a dime.' Then what sounded like, '—but have them ready because I'll be around.'"

"You goose," Joyce said. "You told him you'd been in the room?"

"I shouldn't have should I?" Della said. "But I didn't tell him what I'd heard. I only said I'd seen him with Perry Clarke and knew that something was wrong and couldn't I help. He said I couldn't, and would I please stay out of his private affairs and after that, well"—she shrugged—"it was rather awful, I guess. I said he didn't trust me or he'd tell me the truth, and he said if I trusted him I wouldn't ask. I said if that's the way he felt perhaps it was just as well I found it out, and he said perhaps it was."

"I couldn't hear all that Ward said," Della went on, "because his voice was so low and bitter, but it was something like, 'Not a dime.' Then what sounded like, '—but have them ready because I'll be around.'"

"You goose," Joyce said. "You told him you'd been in the room?"

He said I couldn't, and would I please stay out of his private affairs and after that, well"—she shrugged—"it was rather awful, I guess. and not talk much. And he's not a particularly noisy person. Joyce. So I knew that something was bothering him. And then last night, when that awful little man came to the table. If you had seen the look Ward gave him—

"I did," Joyce said.

"It scared me," Della said. "I felt that he knew all about what was going on. Ward had been. You heard what Ward said when he went out about wanting to kill him once. He laughed about it but that didn't amuse anything."

"It was the same way when he took me home. We sat in the car, not saying a word and—well, I was sick about it, and so afraid. Joyce. I didn't care about South America or Perry Clarke. All I cared about was us. I couldn't stand it if anything happened. I told him so. I told him we didn't have to wait and why couldn't we be married right away. If we could do that, why then—well, whatever might happen after that wouldn't matter so much."

"You love him very much, don't you?"

"Oh, I do," Della said. "I do."

She continued to regard the end of her cigarette, her voice a long way off. "But he said we couldn't. There were things to straighten out first. And I was hurt and—silly, I guess. Something happened to us. We didn't quarrel then though. Not until today."

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

A recent War Savings Stamp will pay for a set of dish towels which designates the soldier's outfit and rank. These chevrons are attached onto the sleeve, shoulder or collar of the uniform. In many cases the Red Cross volunteers at Camps do this work for the soldier boys.

Every Soldier, Flyer or Marine has some sort of insignia which goes onto his uniform. So we need millions of these sets. Your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will pay for them. Even schoolchildren can invest their dimes in War Bonds to buy these insignia sets for our soldier boys. Put at least 10 percent of your income in War Bonds every pay day and top the quota in your country.

"I see," Joyce said finally. "And what about tonight?"

Della looked at her and the fragrant light went out of her eyes. She crushed out her cigarette and sat up.

"You saw me when I came out of the library," she said. "I was furious. I wanted to do something mean and spiteful. When I saw Perry Clarke playing the piano I sat down with him. Before we had finished he asked me to stop in at his place for a drink sometime. I was still angry and said when he suggested I stop by tonight and I told him I might. But after I'd gone home I began to think about that invitation. I wasn't spiteful then. I was worried and upset. When I remembered something I'd heard Perry Clarke say, I decided I'd go."

"But why?" Joyce asked.

"He had something Ward wanted," Della said. "Excitement was beginning to lay hold of her again. 'I have a little money of my own. I thought if I could buy whatever it was Ward needed, why then everything would be all right and there just couldn't be any more trouble. And I didn't see how it could do any harm. Was that so terrible?'"

Joyce uncured her foot and stood up.

"You nut! But go on. I'm prepared for the worst now."

Della smiled wryly. "So I went. That was about ten-thirty. I was scared when I knocked for that someone would be there but no one was—no one else, that is."

She made a face. "It was rather, I guess, at first. I told him I'd covered his conversation with Ward—was something Ward wanted—and I had come for it. He glanced at me and admitted it. A few papers. He had them in an envelope in one of his traveling bags."

She stopped and Joyce sat down again and waited. When several seconds ticked by without a word she said: "Well, what did he say then?"

"Nothing," Della replied. "Because someone knocked on the door."

Two-Thirds of Americans Could Walk To Work If Necessary, Poll Reveals

The Gallup Poll has just completed what is believed to be the first survey in the country to show how far Americans have to travel to get to work and what means of transportation they use. Results are illustrated below:

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., June 26—With nationwide gasoline rationing a vital certainty, Washington administrators have the problem of seeing to it that American workers get to their factories and business firms without difficulty.

Solutions to the problem depend to a great extent on accurate information showing how far Americans live from their work and the means of transportation they now use to get there.

Since the United States census does not cover this point, the American Institute of Public Opinion has conducted a nationwide survey to shed light on the problem of worker transportation.

The study that the public can double up to a much greater extent than at present. The O.P.A. this week postponed the issuance of new gasoline ration cards until July 15 in order to give people in the rationed states more time to form "car-sharing clubs."

1. Out of this survey comes a possible way to conserve the gasoline and tires on many millions of automobiles. Almost one-third of all people who ride in autos to a regular place of work actually live two miles or less from their work shops or offices.

If the government could induce these people to walk to work instead of driving, the daily consumption of gasoline and wear of tires would be considerably reduced throughout the country.

2. A second fact of importance to Washington, and a fact which may surprise the O.P.A., is that if all automobiles, buses, trolleys, subway trains and other means of transportation stopped running throughout the nation, roughly seven out of every 10 employed persons (70 per cent), including farmers, could get to work if they were willing to walk two miles or less.

3. But the remaining 30 per cent have to travel such long distances that the average distance for the country amounts to approximately four miles from home to work, a figure which excludes farmers. If farmers are included

How Many Bicycles?

Along with the trolley car, the horse and buggy and the lost art of walking, bicycles are coming back into their own. If all the bicycles in the nation were collected by the government there would be about enough for all workers in war industries to pedal to work.

Eight million families, according to a survey by the Institute, own a total of 10,500,000 bicycles. Several million families have two or three bikes. More than 10,000 own as many as six.

the average would be considerably reduced since most farmers live on their own place.

Changes in Habits

Because of tire and gasoline rationing, changes are being made in the nation's transportation habits but as is the case with all habits, the changes are slow. So far they have affected relatively few people in the whole working population.

About one person in every six who formerly drove to work has changed his means of transportation in recent months. More are walking than before, others are using a public conveyance. A few, but only a few, are doubling up with neighbors driving to work. In fact, it appears from the

Other facts of interest in the survey are: A person who works in the city is more likely to walk to work than a person who works in the country. A person who works in a factory is more likely to use public conveyance than a person who works in an office. A person who works in a store is more likely to drive to work than a person who works in a bank.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.
New York World Sports Analyst

NEW YORK, June 26.—The big problem for the major league All-Star managers will be how to keep from starting too many Yankees and Dodgers.

Joe McCarthy ought to make out all right—he's had plenty of practice—but Leo Durocher has Wyatt, Owen, Herman, Reese, Vaughan, Reiser and Medwick from his own club. How are you going to pick any player ahead of them?

Don't forget Vaughan was the guy who hit two homers last year, and the All-Star game usually starts him on a hitting streak.

Association Record Tied by Pitcher

Shea Strikes Out 7 Red Birds in Row.

By The United Press
The American association went on something of a baseball frolic last night and before the evening was over had produced a record equalling performance.

The hero was Pitcher Francis Shea of Kansas City who tied the association record with seven consecutive strikeouts, but he lost the game to Columbus, 4 to 3.

At Toledo, the Mudhens blew a 6-0 lead over Milwaukee, then managed to win in 12 innings, 8 to 7.

Louisville and St. Paul split a double-header. The Colonels won the opener, 4 to 3, in 11 innings. St. Paul pounced back to triumph, 8 to 7, in the nightcap.

The Minneapolis game at Indianapolis was postponed.

Later meetings will be used to organize and train additional units in all branches of the defense setup.
